Divine Blessings

Every charitra, each divine episode from the life of Bhagwan Swaminarayan is filled with His divine glory. One who contemplates or narrates these sacred charitras experiences peace and joy within the heart. Through such reflection, all sins are burnt away, and the soul is guided toward ultimate liberation.

In Vachanamrut Gadhada Madhya 35, Lord Shri Hari declares: “All of God’s actions and incidents should be narrated, heard, and contemplated upon in the mind. If a person remembers these during his final moments, his jiva will certainly attain the abode of God. In this way, all of My divine actions and incidents, as well as the chanting of My name, are redemptive.”

May Shri Hari graciously bless every reader of this book with divine bliss, lasting peace, and spiritual fulfillment. May He also bless the editor sādhu Mokshvallabhdas as well as the Yuvak mandal of Loyadham Parivar USA for their humble seva in preparing this book.

Editor's Note

Today's child is tomorrow's future. To secure a bright and noble tomorrow, it is vital to nurture children with strong sanskars - moral and spiritual values that shape their character and guide their lives. With this vision and mission, H.D.H. Shastri Shri Ghanshyamprakashdasji Swami established numerous centers of spiritual wisdom across India, creating sacred spaces where faith and virtue could thrive.

As the influence of Western culture continues to expand, preserving our spiritual heritage among younger generations has become ever more important. To fulfill this need, the Loyadham organizations were founded in countries such as the USA, UK, Canada, and Australia. Through these centers, youth programs and devotional activities continuously nurture faith, discipline, and an enduring appreciation for Hinduism and our Vedic traditions.

Responding to the increasing prominence of the English language and the heartfelt wish of many youths to understand our daily recitals more deeply, Shree Swaminarayan Mandir Loyadham has undertaken the translation of the Nitya Niyamavali - sacred collection of daily prayers including Aarti, Stuti, Cheshta, Kirtans, and more into English. May this publication serve as a guiding companion for readers of all ages. May Lord Swaminarayan graciously bestow His divine blessings upon all, filling every heart with peace, devotion, and spiritual fulfillment.

Prātaḥ Smaran (Morning Remembrance)

By waking up early in the morning, one's strength, mind, and lifespan increases. Every person should sleep at night by 10 PM and should wake up 2 hours before sunrise.

To begin with, believe your soul to be distinct from the 3 bodies (sthul, sukshma, and karan). Thereafter, believe oneself as “brahm” within the soul. With this awareness, meditate upon the divine form of Maharaj along with muktas.

Pūjā ritual : To perform the puja of Bhagwan, one must be seated on a clean, pure, and untouched āsan (mat or cloth). You should be comfortably seated, facing either the north or east direction. Puja should never be performed without an āsan. Additionally, it is essential to observe complete silence throughout the puja

Steps of Daily Puja

1. Āchman: Just as bathing purifies one's body, achman purifies one's pran (life force). Take a couple of drops of water on the palm of your right hand and place the thumb on the middle part of the middle finger (middle phalange). Place your left hand under the right hand and then drink the water by placing the base of your right palm underneath the lower lip and raising the right hand upwards so that the water drips downwards into your mouth (lips should not touch the hands). In this way, do achman three times.

1st āchman - “Om Nārāyaṇāy namaḥ”

2nd āchman - “Om Vāsudevāy namaḥ”

3rd āchman - “Om Vaiṣṇave namaḥ”

Recite these 3 mantras while doing āchman. After āchman, tie your shikhā (chotli) and thereafter wash your hands.

2. Tilak chāndlo: Satsangi males should apply the Urdhvapundra (upward facing) Tilak along with a Chāndlo.

Married women should apply a kumkum chāndlo on their forehead, while widowed women should apply a chāndlo made from kumkum mixed with sandalwood paste on the neck.

While applying tilak, one should chant:

“Om Vāsudevāya Namah”; forehead, “Om Sankarṣaṇāya Namah”; for chest “Om Pradyumnāya Namah” for the right arm; and “Om Aniruddhāya Namah” for the left arm. Thereafter one must do Mānsi Pujā

If one performs any act of worship or ritual without first applying the tilak-chāndlo, it is rendered fruitless. The tilak should be made using gopichandan or sandalwood paste, and a chāndlo of kumkum or chandan should be placed in the center.

3. Mānsi Pujā (mental worship)

4. Āvāhan (invitation): Recite the “āvāhan mantra” below and invite Bhagwan to the idols in your and puja.

Mantra -

*Uttiṣṭho tiṣṭha he nātha, swāminārāyaṇa prabho ।
Dharmaśūnodayāsindho, sveṣhāmshreyahparamkuru ॥
Uttiṣṭho tiṣṭha govinda, uttiṣṭha garuḍa dhvaja ।
Uttiṣṭha kamalā kānta, trai-lokye mangalam kuru ॥
Āgachha bhagavan deva, svasthānāt parameshvara ।
Aham pūjām kariṣhyāmi, sadā tvam sanmukho bhava ॥*

5. Mālā - Chant the mālā as per your personal niyams (spiritual vows). Minimum recommendation is to perform at least 5 malas.

6. Tap ni Mālā - Stand on one foot with both arms raised and continue chanting the mālā. (Perform at least 1 mala in this manner)

7. Pradakshinā - While continuing the mālā, perform pradakshina - walking clockwise around the idol of Bhagwan. (Perform at least 1 mala in this manner)

8. Dandvat - All males should perform ashtang dandvat (prostration using 8 parts of the body), and all females should perform panchang pranām.

up.” Maharaj opens his eyes, smiles, and sits up. I take his hand and lead him to the bathroom. I offer a white toothbrush with toothpaste to Maharaj. He brushes his teeth while I start preparing water for his bath. I lead him to a tub where he sits on a silver stool. I pour warm saffron water over Maharaj followed by regular warm water. I rub his body while doing his Abhishek. After the bath, I dry him with a soft white towel and help him get ready. I pick out a beautiful light blue dhoti and top with diamond accessories such as earrings, necklace, bangles, rings, anklets and a kandoro (waistband). I put a light blue pagh with a white feather on Maharaj’s head. Finally, I add a tilak chandlo on His forehead. For breakfast, Pujya Guruji, Pujya Santos, and Haribhaktos are sitting in a pankti waiting for Maharaj. I serve Maharaj chocolate chip pancakes with syrup, strawberries and bananas, and a glass of milk and water. I fold my hands and say “Maharaj, please enjoy this food.” Maharaj smiles and eats while I gently fan Him as He finishes. After Guruji, Santos, and Haribhaktos have also had prasad, they light an aarti and do aarti of Maharaj.

2. Lunchtime Mansi Puja

Close your eyes and remember I am not this body. I am the soul. I belong to Swaminarayan Bhagwan, and he is always with me. With this thought I begin my mansi puja. Maharaj has been joyfully playing games in the courtyard of Sura Khachar's darbar with many devotees since this morning. Everyone is having so much fun that time has passed quickly, and it is now lunchtime. I go outside and find Maharaj and ask him "Would you like to come eat lunch? You must be very hungry!" Maharaj replies "Oh please, these devotees would not let me sit down and after all the games we've played I have become very hungry." I laugh and lovingly take Maharaj with me. I offer a soft yellow dhoti and a silk khes so that he feels comfortable. After I take Maharaj to the dining area where I have prepared a nice golden bajot with a soft cushion for him to sit on. I help Maharaj sit on the bajot and I began to serve him paneer shak, naan, papad, rice, kadhi and mohanthal. As Maharaj takes his first bite, my heart fills with gratitude. I feel so fortunate that Sarvopari Shree Thakorji Maharaj is accepting the food that I have prepared for him. I continue to do his darshan, and the santos and bhaktos also gather to do his darshan. Soon I notice his dish is almost empty. I say “Maharaj you must take more,” and I refill the dish. Maharaj says “No please, I am completely full.” I lovingly insist “Maharaj, all the santos and bhaktos have prepared this food with so much love, you will have to eat more.” Maharaj laughs and replies “Okay, but no more after this!” After finishing his meal, Maharaj says “I have left some prasad for you.” I thank Maharaj for offering the prasad. I begin to rinse his hands and his mouth with warm water in a separate bowl. I offer him a clean towel to dry his hands and his mouth. Thereafter I offer Maharaj a paan as mukhvaas. After this I say “Maharaj, you must be very tired, we have a long day ahead of us and you have woken up early too, let me take you for a nap.” I bring him to his room which has become nice and cool. I help Maharaj lie down on the bed and gently massage his head, his hands, and his legs. As Maharaj slowly falls asleep, I continue to do his darshan. Finally, I bow down at his feet and I quietly leave the room.

3. Utthapan Mansi Puja

Close your eyes and remember I am not this body. I am the soul. I belong to Swaminarayan Bhagwan, and he is always with me. With this thought I begin my mansi puja. I walk into his quiet, calm room. Maharaj is resting peacefully. I gently call out, “Maharaj, it is time to wake up from your nap, everyone is looking forward to having your darshan.” Maharaj slowly rolls over smiling, and has a big stretch. I bow down at his feet. I bring a small bowl of rose water and a small cloth. First, I gently wash his face, then his hands and feet. I dry them with a soft towel. I then take Maharaj to the dining hall where I help him sit on a small, decorated sofa. I place a soft pillow behind him. I offer Maharaj a tray with potato chips, almonds, grapes, and lemonade. He smiles and starts enjoying the food as I start singing softly. As Maharaj finishes his snacks, I fold my hands and say, “Thank you Maharaj, for letting me serve you.” Then, I offer prasad to Pujya Guruji, Pujya Santos, and Pujya Haribhaktos. After everyone is done, we all go outside to play sports.

4. Dinnertime Mansi Puja

Close your eyes and remember I am not this body. I am the soul. I belong to Swaminarayan Bhagwan, and He is always with me. With this thought I begin my mansi puja. After performing aarti/stuti of Maharaj, I change Maharaj into more casual and comfortable clothing. I help him take off all of his jewelry and garments, and offer him a simple white dhoti with a white shawl. I take him to the dining area with soft lights hanging from the ceiling. I fold my hands and say “Maharaj, dinner is ready. Please come and sit so I can serve you.” Maharaj smiles and walks over to sit on his golden dining chair. I place a clean plate in front of Him. I now bring pizza, mozerrella sticks, fresh salad, and soda. He smiles and begins eating, as I do His darshan. As Maharaj is finishing, I bring a warm chocolate brownie topped with ice cream for dessert. Maharaj becomes happy and enjoys the dessert. Thereafter, I wash Maharaj’s hands, and I give Him water to rinse His mouth then I offer Him mukhwas. Afterwards, Pujya Guruji, Pujya Santos and Haribhaktos take prasad.

5. Bedtime Mansi Puja

Close your eyes and remember I am not this body. I am the soul. I belong to Swaminarayan Bhagwan, and He is always with me. With this thought I begin my mansi puja. The night has been filled with fun games, kirtan bhakti, katha, and raas in the courtyard of Sura Khachar's darbar. The sky is clear and the lamps are lit. The time is now 10:00 PM. I have prepared Maharaj's room and his bed with a soft comforter, gentle bedsheets, and a mellow pillow. I now go towards Maharaj so I can ask him to get some rest and sleep. I approach him and say "Maharaj it is late and you must be tired, please come inside and rest." Maharaj says "Yes, after a long day, I am ready to go to sleep." I take Maharaj to his bedroom where I change him into comfortable pajamas. Maharaj sits on the bed. Before He lies down, I offer a glass of warm milk that I have prepared with almonds, pistachios, saffron, and elaichi. Maharaj slowly drinks the whole cup of milk. I help him lie down on the bed and cover him with a comforter. I dim the lights in the room and sit beside his bed and begin to massage

His head, arms, back, and legs. While massaging, I continue to do darshan of Maharaj while thinking that it is my great fortune and blessing of Maharaj, that I get to serve him like this. Maharaj slowly closes his eyes and falls asleep. I bow down at his lotus feet and whisper “Good night Maharaj” and I quietly leave the room.

Special

All 5 mansi pujas should be performed according to the ongoing season. One should start performing mansi puja according to the time of the day. Also, keeping in mind the clothes and ornaments that were worn by the Lord in the previous mansi puja, one should meditate on the form of Shri Hari and perform mansi puja on time.

A devotee who always performs mansi puja five times becomes submissive to God, and his unconquerable mind is easily conquered by the grace of God.
